

Atlantic Design Center (in the Eldredge Lumber Building)
627 US Route One, York, Maine

Antarctica Comes Alive!

This is the 4th time Ed Webster is doing a presentation at the Atlantic Design Center. Ed is an author, photographer, and has experienced most of the major rock climbing areas in the US and Europe as well as Mt. Everest. He survived the impossible when he climbed Mt. Everest 's most dangerous and isolated side, and never before tried, which he did without oxygen bottles, radios, and Sherpa climbers.

This time he will make Antarctica come alive! He went there twice in 2018 as a Polar History Lecturer on adventure cruise ships, and will return again in November 2019.

In this presentation Webster recounts the historic voyages and eventual discovery of Antarctica by 18th, 19th, and 20th century explorers. Combining original archival photographs, pictures by scientific researchers, wildlife videos, and his own modern images really and truly will make Antarctica Come Alive!

Don't miss this opportunity to listen to a most inspiring, engaging and captivating presenter.

Please Make Reservations

email: mclaesson@eldredgelumber.com or call 207-363-3004.